

Positive Women for Change — Moving our Lives Forward Together
Kia Stearn, Founder and President, PW4C

I beat the odds in many ways, and I'm working to help other women do the same.

Positive Women for Change (PW4C) empowers limited income women and helps them get back on the road to financial security. I know how critical 1:1 financial training can be to help people reach modest—but critical—financial goals.

I know firsthand how difficult it can be to maintain a household with limited income. I've had to provide for three children, now all college graduates. Some of what I learned was through trial and error. The experience of raising and caring for a family should never be undervalued.

I feel that my life experience has been my education; this is often true for many limited income women. And that is the reason why I began PW4C. If I hadn't benefited from our community's resources, I could have been homeless. I want to give back—and if I can help others like me overcome their challenges, it's worth every minute I put into it.
